

Evan Sanchez
Co-Founder, Authentic City Partners

Evan Sanchez is an entrepreneur with his sights set on the long-term renaissance of Atlantic City.

While still an undergraduate student at Columbia University in New York City, Sanchez joined the founding management team of Olo. For nearly a decade, he worked in leadership positions across Olo, including Operations, Account Management, Sales and Business Development. Sanchez helped to build Olo into the industry leader in online and mobile ordering for over 30,000 restaurants, including national chains like Chipotle, Five Guys Burgers & Fries, Baskin-Robbins, and Applebee's. He also served as President and Board Member of the Columbia Venture Community, the largest Columbia University-based entrepreneurship organization.

Sanchez recently returned to his hometown, and in his efforts to promote positivity in Atlantic City co-founded ThisIsAC, a non-profit grassroots community movement. He also serves as Secretary of the Atlantic City Arts Foundation. Sanchez co-founded Authentic City Partners in 2016 to create development projects in Atlantic City with a singular commitment: to better the lives of those in our community.
